The Secret History of American Book "Burning" . . .

BOOK: Ye Shall Know The Truth

Excerpt from Michael Collins Piper

Who really "burned" books in Germany? While images of "the Nazis" burning books are iconic in the Jewish-controlled media, the truth is that never once did the Third Reich officially order the destruction of any book.

The famous book burnings were not government-directed at all; rather they were entirely symbolic and quite limited in number; carried out by university professors, students and intellectuals who were not among the strongest supporters of the new Hitler regime. This, of course, is quite in contrast to the image of "jack-booted thugs" raiding libraries and sacking bookstores. No libraries were raided. No bookstores were sacked. None of this is acknowledged in the Nazi-obsessed media today.

Those books that were actually formally banned by the Reich at one point or another over a 12-year period — some 4,175 individual titles, a relatively small number — were preserved in government archives.

In stark contrast, under the American post-war occupation of Germany, 34,645 individual titles plus every school textbook used in Germany from 1933 to 1945 — were officially banned by the U.S. military occupation's Office of Information Control (OIC). That's more than eight times as many titles as those proscribed under Adolf Hitler.

And those books banned by the good, democratic devotees of freedom of expression were, in fact, physically destroyed. Libraries, book stores and publishing warehouses were raided and untold tons of books were pulped — rather than burned — since the Americans did not want to be accused of burning books "just like the Nazis."

Most interesting is the identity of the marauder in charge of the operation. Although Gen. Robert McClure was OIC chief, he had little, if anything, to do with OIC affairs. He left day-to-day decision making up to his deputy chief, Russian-born Jew, William Paley, a high-ranking Freemason and founder of the CBS broadcasting empire. Under the appointive titles "colonel" — despite no real record of military service — Paley took time off from his media dynasty to direct the destruction of German literature and the arts.

An OIC study, by California State University's Dr. Cora Goldstein, in the March-April 2008 issue of Military Affairs, reported OIC's policies "reflected the ideological profile" of its staff and that "a significant portion" of the staff were "New Dealers, intellectuals, emigres, Jews, leftists."

These were the creatures — paid by American tax dollars — who conducted a very real "holocaust" that was unquestionably the greatest campaign of "book burning" in all of recorded history.
